Summary

Captain Marvel Jr. #51 is a comic book published by DC Comics in 1944. The story was written by Otto Binder and drawn by C.C. Beck. In this issue, Captain Marvel Jr. faces off against his greatest enemy, the evil wizard Ibac.

Plot

The story begins with Captain Marvel Jr. and his friends, Mary Marvel and Hoppy the Marvel Bunny, on a camping trip. While they are hiking, they come across a strange cave. They decide to explore the cave, and they soon find themselves in a strange and wonderful land.

In this land, Captain Marvel Jr. meets a young boy named Jay Matthews. Jay is a kind and compassionate boy, but he is also very sick. Captain Marvel Jr. learns that Jay is dying from a rare disease, and that there is no cure.

Captain Marvel Jr. is determined to save Jay's life. He searches the land for a cure, but he cannot find one. Finally, Captain Marvel Jr. realizes that the only way to save Jay is to use his own powers.

Captain Marvel Jr. uses his powers to heal Jay's body. Jay is miraculously cured, and he is grateful to Captain Marvel Jr. for saving his life.

Captain Marvel Jr. and his friends return to the cave, and they find themselves back in their own world. Captain Marvel Jr. is grateful for the experience he has had, and he knows that he will never forget Jay Matthews.
