Its towering presence in the midst of bustling Midtown Manhattan transforms the city into a winter wonderland, illuminating the streets with its dazzling lights and spreading festive cheer throughout the city.

The tradition of the Rockefeller Center Christmas Tree began in 1931 during the Great Depression. Amidst economic hardship, workers at Rockefeller Center decided to erect a small Christmas tree to bring some much-needed joy to their lives and the surrounding community. The tree was an instant hit, attracting crowds of people seeking solace and a sense of hope during a challenging time.

Selecting the Perfect Tree: A Journey Across the Nation

Each year, a dedicated team of experts embarks on a meticulous search for the perfect tree to grace Rockefeller Center. The selection process is rigorous, with scouts traveling across the country to identify Norway spruce trees that meet the stringent criteria.

The ideal tree must have a perfect conical shape, be at least 70 feet tall and 40 feet wide, and possess strong branches capable of supporting the elaborate decorations. Once a suitable tree is found, it is carefully cut down and transported to New York City, where it undergoes a meticulous preparation process before taking its place in Rockefeller Center.

As the countdown to the lighting reaches its end, the crowd bursts into cheers as over 30,000 LED lights illuminate the tree, casting a warm glow over the surrounding area. The sight of the towering tree, adorned with over 8 miles of lights and topped with a dazzling star, is a breathtaking spectacle that leaves an enduring memory in the hearts of all who witness it.
