Chapter 1: The Sociopath's Mask

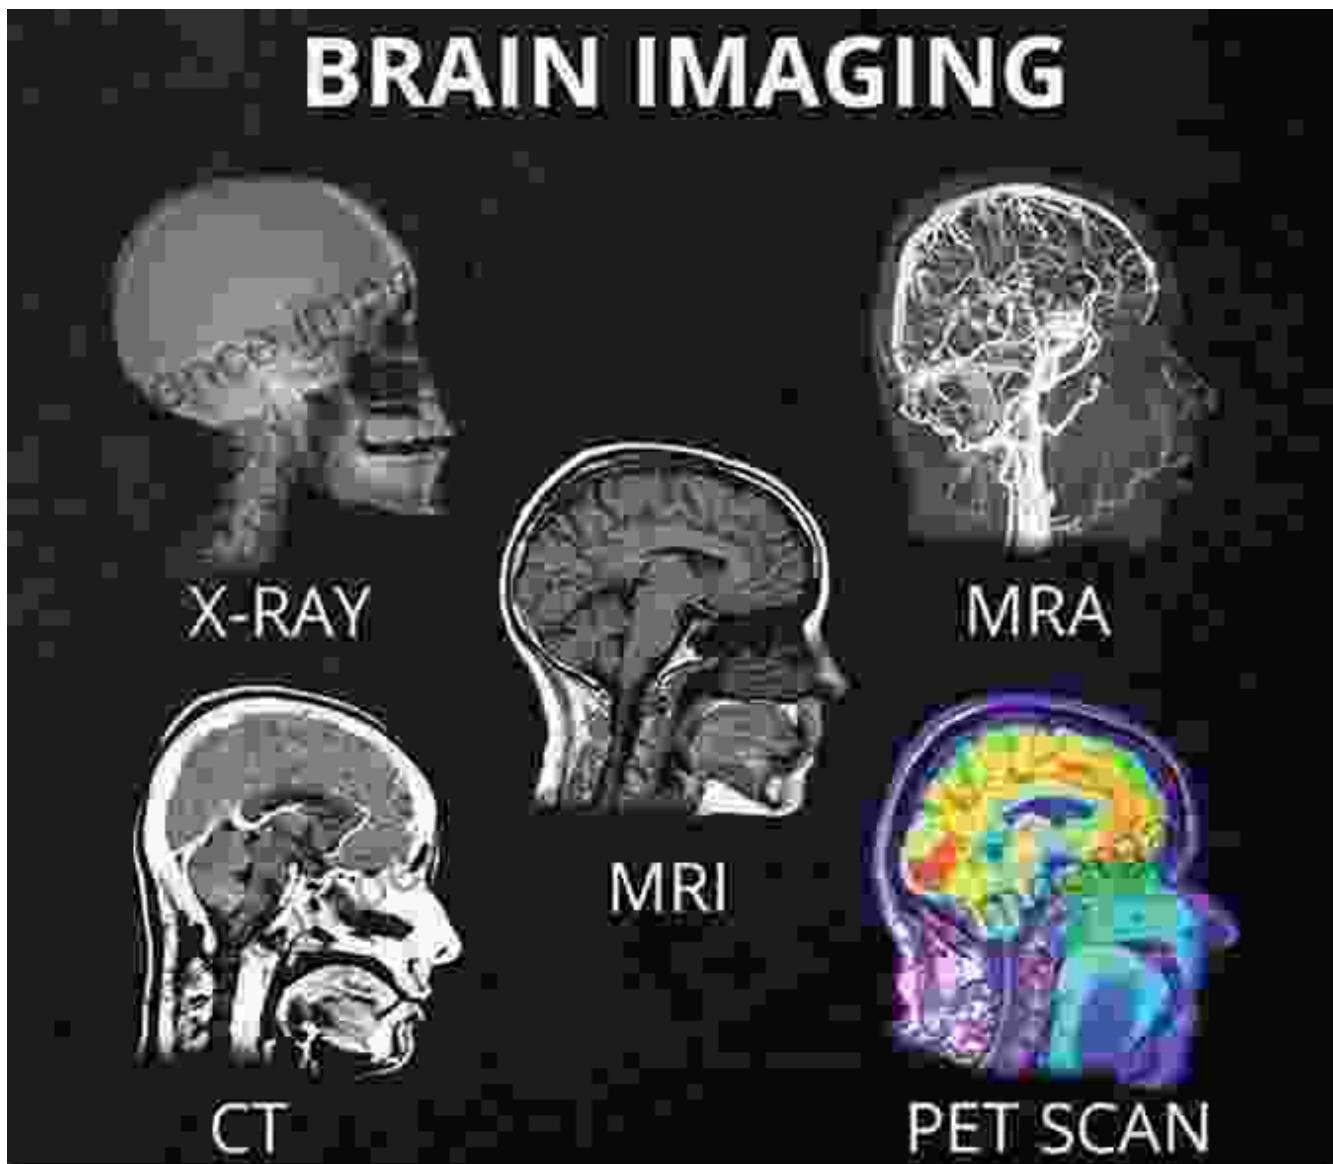

Dr. Carter begins by exploring the facade that sociopaths maintain to deceive others. She describes their ability to project an image of charm and charisma, while concealing their true intentions. She also discusses the various tactics they employ to manipulate others, such as flattery, guilt-tripping, and emotional blackmail.

I believe that a lot of the sociopath's traits such as charm, manipulation, lying, promiscuity, chameleonism, mask wearing, and lack of empathy are largely attributable to a very weak sense of self.
